NOTES

USSR: The Soviet leaders have apparently agreed on a series of organizational and personnel changes which they are beginning to announce without any propaganda buildup or any reference to the Khrushchev ouster. This procedure is undoubtedly intended to minimize any disrupting effects on the party and governmental bureaucracies. In the latest change, candidate presidium member Yefremov has been quietly relegated to the provinces from a key party post overseeing agriculture--suggesting that he is being blamed for some of the deficiencies in this area.

Italy: The Christian Democrats' long delay in naming a compromise presidential candidate may already have seriously shaken the cohesion of the Moro government.

A last-minute compromise on the presidential issue is possible, but the bitterness arising from the long contest has hurt the coalition's longer range prospects?

*Egypt: In his bitterest attack on the US since 1956, Nasir yesterday pledged his support of "national liberation" forces and accused the US of attempting to use aid to control Egyptian policies. He may be testing US intentions on aid or he may believe that he has additional commitments of Soviet economic support. In any case, Nasir declared his determination to continue his policies regardless of relations with the US.
